GOOD MORNING, MASSACHUSETTS. Super Tuesday is over! Here's how it all shook out.

- “Newton voters OK Northland’s big mixed-use project, despite predictions of a traffic nightmare,” by John Hilliard, Boston Globe: “After weeks of bitter debate, the city’s voters gave the go-ahead Tuesday to a plan to build hundreds of apartments and new commercial space in Newton Upper Falls. The special municipal election, timed for Super Tuesday, asked voters whether they approved of Northland Investment Corp.’s mixed-use project at the corner of Needham and Oak streets. According to the city clerk’s office, 18,565 voters backed a zoning change needed for the plan to move forward, while 13,449 cast ballots against the project.”
